Copenhagen is the capital, and the largest city of Denmark, with a population of 1.2 million.

Copenhagen is well known for its happy people, laid back lifestyle and the concept of 'hygge' - 'coziness'.

Copenhagen is a very compact city and it is easy to get around. This means that it is very easy to combine business with pleasure by attending the meetings in the city center and organising team building in the area.

Tivoli Gardens, founded in 1843 became a national treasure and an international attraction. But don't be fooled by ones describing it as an 'amusement park', Tivoli Gardens is much more! A number of superb restaurants, attractions, performances, stunning gardens, and an open air stage plays, make Tivoli Gardens a 'must see' when in Copenhagen. Our favourite time in Tivoli Gardens is for sure Christmas time!

Motivate attendees

- 🕒 1-2 hours
- 👥 work in groups
- 📍 indoor / outdoor

Speakers, even comedians, and musicians can be very inspirational in different ways. Why not start the day with an experience that will prime everyone to get down to business? An ice breaker game can be a nice start before the presentations, or a break between lectures.

Entertainment is a great way to allow attendees to sit back and relax, even for just a short time. Local musicians, dancers or speakers will give attendees a unique experience they wouldn't have if the meeting were held elsewhere.

Entertainment doesn't have to be superficial. Many forms of it can be educational and provide a cultural experience.

The best part about it is that it's a shared experience. Featuring a performance at a meeting automatically gives audience something to talk about.

Restaurants

Michelin Starred

Copenhagen a city where you will eat best smørrebrød, try perfect hot-dog, and find plenty Michelin starred restaurants.

Culinary offerings in Copenhagen are limitless, there's never been a better time to eat in the town.

Copenhagen's restaurants are more than just a food. The taste, interiors, and service makes it a truly amazing culinary experience.

If you are a foodie company, you should for sure consider Copenhagen as your next incentive destination! Danish pastry and microbreweries are waiting for you!

Food is powerful. It brings us together, and shapes our memories.

MUST VISIT

Chef Rasmus Kofoed is the only competitor to have won all three trophies at the Bocuse d'Or cooking competition, so it's no surprise that the chef's competitive spirit and obsessively touched food have earned Geranium the distinction of being the only restaurant in Denmark with three Michelin stars; it's almost too perfect that it's located in the city's soccer stadium.

Local Flavours

MUST TRY

An open faced sandwich is something you don't want to miss in Copenhagen. From all variations either with herrings, frikadelle or egg our forever favourite is Smørrebrød with roast beef! This local restaurant is arguably the place to go these days for a Danish lunch, elegant updated interior, and smørrebrød that feel just like in the old days.

Street food

MUST TRY

Copenhagen is now in full bloom when it comes to food stands. There are dozens of food stands, and authentic street food markets where food cultures, ideas and initiative come together in one effort and the only parameters are that the food tastes good, is made from scratch, and is sustainable. As much as we love it all we'll always be faithful to Danish hot-dogs! :)
